Presented by Nick Terrell

Climate Change is nothing new to our planet. What is different this time around is that global warming is being caused by humans and the rate of change is far more rapid. The good news is that we have many of the tools and, very importantly, the capital to slow and reverse global warming. The big question is, do we have the global political will? Join Nick Terrell, geologist, oil executive and now carbon capture innovator, as he addresses both the science, geopolitics and technical solutions to planetary climate change.
